

Information on minimum security update periods

This is an “internet-connectable product” which means that it is capable of connecting to the internet by using a communication protocol that forms part of the Internet Protocol suite to send and receive data over the internet.

This product contains software that is capable of receiving security updates where that software is pre-installed on the product by Electrolux.

In accordance with the UK Product Security and Telecommunications Infrastructure (PSTI) Bill No. 1007 of 2023, Electrolux declares that extended security software support will only be distributed if and when it becomes available. Please note that this impacts only the connected functions of your product and will not affect the non-connected functionality of the product.

In some circumstances such support services may include the supply of replacement physical parts or modules.

Where:

“Security update” means a software update that protects or enhances the security of the product, including a software update that addresses security issues which have been discovered by or reported by Electrolux

“Support period” means the minimum length of time, expressed as a period of time with an end date, for which security updates will be provided by Electrolux for this product.
